

FAMILIAR LET

whether these enunciated dames think—if indeed we may venture to suspect a fast woman of ever doing anything so slow and old-fashioned—that they in any way commend themselves to the affections or the admiration of their male friends by such intrusion on their dominus. However slangy or fast they may be, most men, in some secret corner of their composition, cherish quired the reason of this slight to his own and his brothers' and sisters' rank. The officer of the watch replied that, there being squalls about, the flag, a silk one, would stand in danger of being rent in twain.— "Never mind that," remarked the Prince. "When any of the Royal Family are on board, it ought to be flying. I beg it may be hoisted immediately."
